GCSU Spring Election Results Résultats des élections du printemps

by Robert Mackey

The spring election of 1990 is now over and the ballots have been compiled by our ever-faithful CRO, Naomi Lee-Fook and DRO Lynn Fortin.

Eric Dansereau won the presidential position. His victory was a narrow seven votes over his closest rival Patricia Arnold. Finishing third was Mike Laxer, followed by Steeve Gaudreault.

Au poste de directrice des clubs et services, Providence Bikumbi a gagné avec 194 votes. Stéphan La Joie a reçu 123, Tanya Gulliver75, et candidate inscrite, Christiana Melo n'a eu qu'un seul vote.

Students almost unanimously voted 'Yes' to the Pro-Tem referendum question, indicating how Glendon students want their dollar spent. Eighty-five point eight per cent of voters supported the proposal. Aussi chez Pro Tem, Gervais Oniane a été ratifié comme nouveau Rédacteur en Chef.

En total 410 étudiants du Collège Glendon ont voté cette année.

Accessibility to University is diminishing rapidly. Vos frais de scolarité vont augmenter de 8 per cent et seront donc de 2500$ en septembre 1990, avec possibilité d'augmentation jusqu'à 3000$ pour 1993. However, it does not end here. Under the direction of Minister of Colleges and Universities Sean Conway, the provincial government plans to raise tuition fees by 15 per cent every year for the next five years.

The Ontario Federation of Students (OFS) has organised a Rally to protest tuition fee hikes. Students from Ontario's Colleges and Universities will be meeting at Ryerson Polytechnical Institute (Victoria and Gould Streets) from where they will march to the Ministry of Education, Mowat Block (Bay and Wellesley Streets).

The Glendon College Student Union has booked a bus to take students to the rally. Meet in front of the Cafeteria at 12:00pm on March 15. Bring your friends and express your concerns. C'est votre avenir impliquer-vous!

Réduction des fonds de programmes d'emplois d'été

par Gervais Oniane

"L'éducation un droit!"; tel est le slogan de la Fédération Canadienne des Etudiant(e)s (F.C.E), qui depuis belle lurette déjà mène un débat très houleux avec les autorités gouvernementales pour une meilleure démocratisation des frais de scolarité au niveau post-secondaire. Mais non-seulement cette lutte est loin d'être gagnée, voici que le gouvernement fédéral annonce l'amputation des fonds alloués pour les emplois d'été, de sorte que le montant afférent passerait de 118.8 millions (été 89) à 67 millions pour l'été 90!

Cette décision, en dépit des arguments gouvernementaux en sa faveur(...), est cependant malvenue pour les étudiants. Car, vu la cherté des frais de scolarité dans les universités ontariennes notamment, les emplois d'été ont toujours représenté une source de revenu grâce à laquelle les étudiants pouvaient assurer une bonne partie du financement de leurs études. Mais malgré cela, d'après les statistiques du Secrétariat d'Etat, de 1985/86 à 1987/88 le nombre d'étudiants en fin de cycle avec une dette universitaire supérieure à 15,000 dollars a doublé. Et maintenant qu'en plus de l'augmentation des frais de scolarité on coupe le budget des emplois d'été, l'éducation ne risque-t-elle pas de devenir plus un privilège qu'un droit?

Trop court mandat

Glendon vient à peine d'élire sa toute nouvelle association étudiante pour la prochaine année académique.

Il est peut être encore trop tôt pour faire le bilan du présent conseil mais il est intéressant de s'arrêter sur la durée du mandat de l'AECG telle qu'établie présentement.

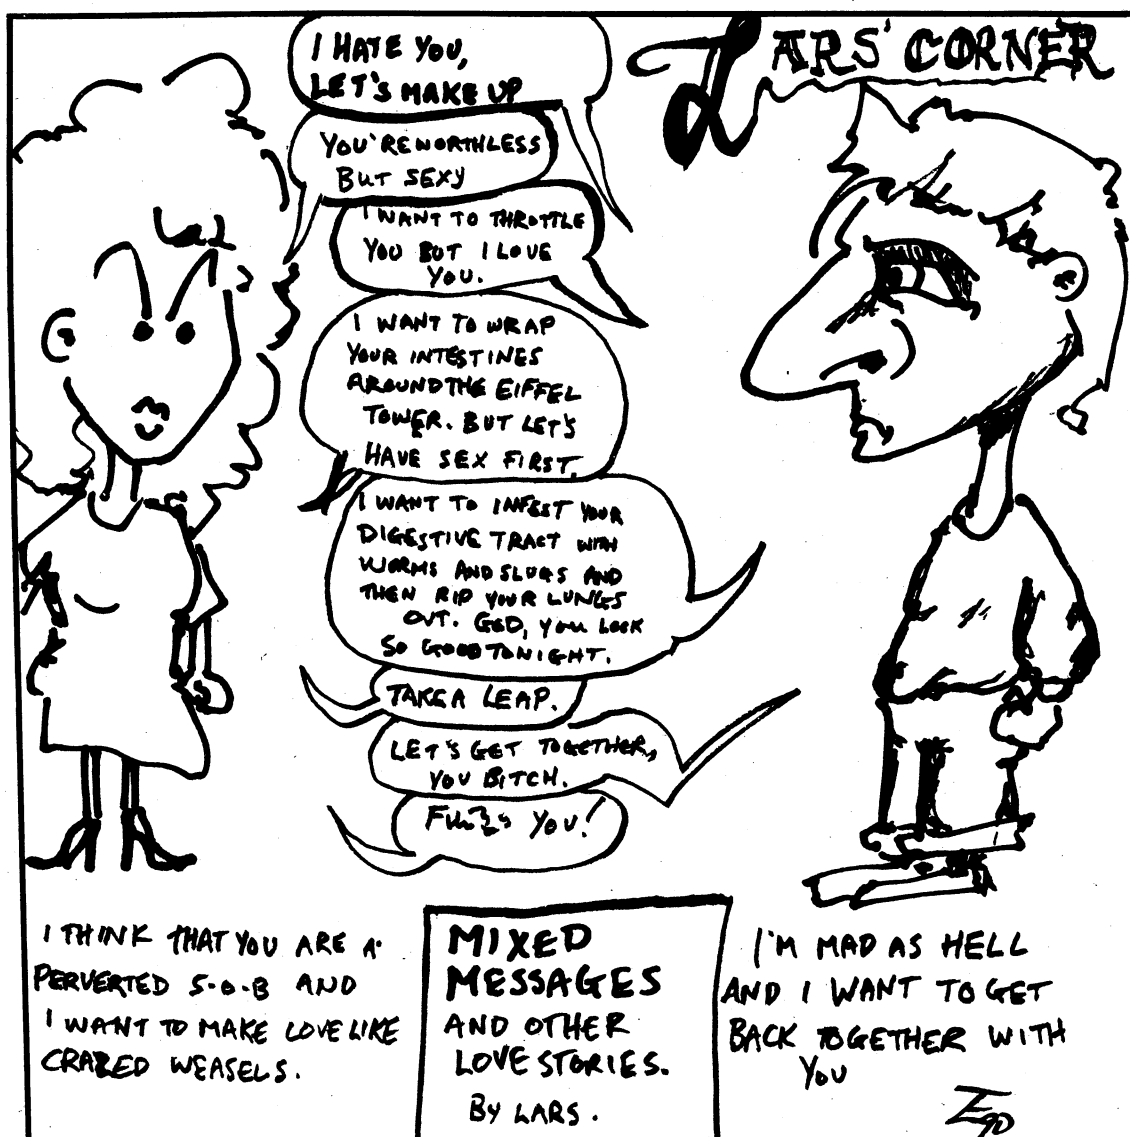

A la lumière des nombreuses critiques émises par la population étudiante, il est juste de s'interroger à ce sujet. C'est qu'avec toute la complexité des dossiers et les démarches administratives interminables nécessaires au travail des associations étudiantes, il ne faut pas s'étonner de leur maigre performance au terme d'un an de travail. Il faut des mois de rodage pour toute organisation nouvelle, il faut des mois d'apprentissage des dossiers, il faut des mois d'ajustement de la part des élus.

Sous ce rapport, vient la fin du mandat d'un an que l'organisation, en l'occurrence l'AECG, commence, de fait, à avoir le plein contrôle de la situation. Constitution oblige, de nouvelles élections doivent avoir lieu, un nouveau conseil est élu et ainsi se perdent de précieuses énergies. On recommence à zéro.

Est-t-il donc étonnant que trop souvent le gouvernement étudiant ne devienne qu'un organisateur d'événements sociaux?

Si certains observateurs favorisent la prolongation des quatre ans de mandat des gouvernements fédéral et provinciaux, la seule année de pouvoir des associations étudiantes ne peut qu'offrir un programme électoral vague, qu'encourager le statu quo, que soutenir une politique de courte vue.

COURRIER/FEEDBACK

Irresponsible

Dear Editor:

In response to the letter titled "A-House wimps", I have only one thought: I have never read such blatantly sexist, irresponsible and poorly-considered words printed on the pages of the college's newspaper. I was enraged to read that several women of Glendon College in positions of responsibility could use such language to ridicule a portion of the Glendon College student community. What has gravely disappointed me is that other women on campus, whom I knew as feminists, approve of the letter submitted by members of the Recycling Committee.

I do not believe sexism is a joke. Nor do I believe that any person is predisposed to difficulty in establishing a Recycling programme in her/his house because of his/her gender. I do believe it is very hypocritical to fight for equality for women while discriminating against men.

Complete equality between the sexes will never be achieved while stereotypes and generalizations on gender continue. A-House is not the home of debauched, drunken, illiterate wimps who don't care about the environment. If a women's house had not been recycling, would they have been called "stupid, airhead bitches who only care about doing their makeup" or something equally ridiculous?

I realize there has been significant difficulty in establishing regular recycling in A-House. But the Recycling Committee is apparently ignorant of the fact that the Porter insisted recycling receptacles were a fire hazard and were no longer necessary because the recycling programme was terminated.

I suggest any further "encouragement" of recycling be based on facts, rather than attacks. I also believe the Recycling Committee members who are responsible for the letter in the February 26 Pro-Tem apologize for the sexist remarks they used in their "formulated" theories as to why A-House was lacking in co-operation with their efforts.

Yours Truly,
Laurie M. Howe

Oversight

Dear Editor:

As the author of your March 5, 1990 newspaper article entitled: "The dawning of a guy named Tom" (Pro Tem Vol. 29, No. 16), I wish to express my disappointment and dismay at your failure to respect the journalistic standards and ethics fundamental to a 'free press'. You failed to protect your readers' interests and my integrity.

Surely your readership has the right to know the authenticity of your contributors? I can only assume that your failure to identify the authorship is an example of either editorial neglect or presumptuousness. Professional journalists refer to this as censorship (controlling their by-lines is one of the few means available for writers to protect their integrity). Your 'oversight' has reduced mine.

You should also appreciate that sometimes a by-line can be a statement in itself - i.e. a guy named Tom really did write that for International Women's

Glendon's evening of Indian Culture

Glendon Community members honour UN Club's "Evening of Indian Culture".

by Mahmud Abdulla

On February 23 1990, the Glendon College United Nations Club hosted a fundraising dinner called "Bharatiya Sandhiya- An Evening of Indian Culture." Its purpose was to acquaint members of the Glendon Community with the culture, customs and traditions of the Indian Community.

Approximately 200 people attended the dinner and the guest list included: Mr. K.S. Jasrotia- Consul General of India, Mr. B. Nixon- Liberal MPP York Mills, Vice-Principal Jaubert, Assistant Dean Fortin and Colonel Alex Morrison, Executive Director of the Canadian Institute of Strategic Studies and the Club's Faculty Advisor.

In his speech, the Consul

General said: "I would like to compliment Glendon College for choosing to represent India at the Model United Nations Conference... This bespeaks of close and friendly ties that exist between our two countries... India has always been associated with important initiatives taken by the UN in bringing peace and stability to the world."

Vice-Principal Jaubert said he was pleased with the idea of having a dinner where the community the Club was going to represent in New York was present. Jaubert said Glendon has always had close links with the Republic of India. Through the works of Glendon's founding Principal, Escott Reid, and continuing with John Holmes and, more recently, Professor Apathurai, the College's ties with the Government of India have been very strong, he said.

Warmest approval of the event came from Fortin: "Tonight's function is unprecedented. It is unlike any I have seen before here at Glendon."

In an interview after the dinner, Club President James Pickering described the dinner as a part of the Club's new image.

"It was an attempt to give something back to Glendon's Student Community in appreciation for what the student community has done for the Club." Pickering said.

The dinner would not have been as successful as it was without the numerous donors and sponsors who contributed time, money and food items towards the function.

Some highlights of the evening included: Naomi Lee-Fook singing "O Canada" a cappella and 10 year-old Indian semi-classical dancer, Salima Jetta, performing a love song.

La révolution roumaine

par Robert Mackey

Glendon student Adrian Gulesiu recently spoke of the dramatic political changes which have shaken Romania since the beginning of the December revolution in the Eastern European country. His comments were addressed to attentive members of the Amnesty International Club at their meeting last week.

now able to propose solutions to the problems faced by the new government.

Fundamental liberties are only now, after many years, being restored. Access to abortions has been legalized; freedom of the press and of self-expression exist; democratic elections are planned for the month of May and capital punishment has been illegal since the hasty execution of former head of state Nicolae Ceausescu.

Le peuple de Roumanie haïssait l'ancien régime. Beaucoup de gens et d'enfants ne recevaient pas l'alimentation de base nécessaire pour survivre. De plus, dans un pays riche comme la Roumanie, l'argent ne circulait pas dans les mains des travailleurs et des citoyens. Le gouvernement d'avant la révolution ne pouvait pas tenir sa promesse d'améliorer la situation économique.

M Gulesiu a décrit en détail les événements de la révolution. Selon lui, elle a commencé le 16 décembre 1989 avec la révolte de Timisoara, une ville de 300 000 habitants. Cette révolte a été supprimée par force et il y a eu beaucoup de morts. Cinq jours plus tard, le 21 décembre, le peuple a enfin vaincu quand Ceausescu a pris la fuite.

M Gulesiu a aussi expliqué brièvement l'histoire et la culture roumaines. Il a présenté les coutumes traditionnelles de la poésie, de la musique, de la nourriture, et du vin. M Gulesiu est d'origine roumaine mais demeure au Canada depuis sept ans.

Il a ajouté pendant une entrevue qu'il est fier d'être Roumain parce que dans son pays il y a plusieurs groupes ethniques qui vivent paisiblement ensemble.

The meeting began with Romanian music and poetry read by Claire Dat and Claire Johnson.

D'après M Gulesiu, les Roumains ont été forcés à se révolter puisqu'il ne leur restait plus d'espoir. He continued to say that the present situation in Romania is a step forward for its people. "C'est le moment de bâtir leur avenir!"

In qualifying this statement, Gulesiu said the provisional government, although not elected, is drawn from citizens representing all walks of Romanian life. Labour, rural, intellectual, church and student groups, as well as the army, are

ACTUALITÉ

Au menu

by Janet Ellis

The Glendon Food Service Committee got some good news last week. Norm Crandles, director of Housing and Food Services (and author of the evil budget) attended our last meeting. He reported to us that Glendon has the most effective food service and food service committee at York University. So, if you win the lottery during the summer and can afford to come back to Glendon next year, consider becoming a food rep- strong representation works!

Of course, we can't take all the credit. The main reason things are going so well is Eddie, our catering manager. I'm happy to say that Eddie is finally going to get an assistant. It's only seven months too late but, with all the staff problems and changes that have occurred, this addition to the staff will benefit us all.

There have been several changes at the Bistro. Most notably, the new menu is now in effect. The steak sandwich is excellent but also very small. The fettucini is a great vegetarian substitute but it's so bland that it should be called Noodles à la Skim Milk. We discussed these and other menu problems with Eddie and he will look into them.

You Have Options

We also discussed substitutions again. You are entitled to a small chef's salad (with choice of dressing) if you don't want fries with your dinner at the Bistro. You have the right to baked beans/rice if you don't want fries with your dinner at the steam table. You may consider this carved in stone. If you are informed otherwise at the Bistro or the steam table, ask to see Eddie. If you see something that is wrong, tell Eddie. If you have a suggestion, let Eddie know. But most of all, if you were well served and your meal was good, compliment Eddie. Things are so much better this year than before. Eddie has done it all, so let's tell him we appreciate it once in a while.

And speaking of appreciation, please remember our friends slaving away at the Bistro. At this time of year they aren't going to need any more scrip. Please tip in cash, if you can. If you can't, try leaving something else they could use. Be creative. If your server is a smoker, leave a couple of butts or a lighter. Exam questions always come in handy. Of course, if you have a loonie or two you could spare, please leave them.

At our last meeting, GFSC remarked that there had been a marked improvement in the condition of the Caf. Thanks for pitching in. There are still a sly few ones among us who leave their trays on tables. Perhaps these people are concerned that they might be taking a job away from a Restauronics employee. Have no fear, you won't be dooming anyone to financial despair. You'll be contributing to a palatable dining atmosphere.

Where Does It All Go?

I mentioned in my last column that the Caf was losing a fortune in trays, dishes and cutlery. At our last meeting I got some figures. Eddie spends in excess of $1000 every other week replacing these items. Last week he spent $1200. Next week, GFSC will be presented with the proposed food prices for next year. If you think there won't be any increases, you are very, very wrong. If you think that Restauronics will cover the cost of replacements, again, you are very, very wrong. Please bring any Caf property you might accidentally have in your room to your porter. If we can keep expenses down, we can keep prices down as well.

Good luck in your travels through Essay Hell.

The malaise of the microwave age

by Darren Gluckman

The year is 1997. It is the week of May 12. On college and university campuses across the globe, the battle is about to begin. The atmosphere is tense. It has been building for months. Now all hell will break loose.

Some say it was bound to happen. The Society for the Preservation of Walnuts and the Save the Humped Wallaby Foundation have run into conflict with one another. Why? Do walnuts threaten wallabies? Do wallabies snack on walnuts? Well, not quite. Actually, it's a scheduling thing. You see, the week of May 12 was supposed to be International Walnut Preservation Week. At least, the Society for the Preservation of Walnuts had taken the liberty of securing the only week left on the calendar for their cause. But unbeknownst to them, the Save the Humped Wallaby Foundation had just received the latest stats that declared their animal Fashionably Endangered. This meant it was now hip to be a humped wallaby crusader. And naturally for them, the humped wallaby (a grub-eating cute-as-the-devil little furball) was far more important than a mere nut. And so the posters went up: "The week of March 12 is Save the Humped Wallaby Week." The battle lines were drawn.

The outcome of this particular confrontation is not important. But the scenario may be. We just had International Women's Week. No one can seriously dispute its significance. Or the right of people to celebrate and contemplate the issues raised. But what happens when the calendar fills up, when fifty-two causes are identified and assigned a particular "International" week? More accurately, what happens when the fifty-third cause is identified? Who gets bumped off? Who gets doubled up? How pathetic it would be to see groups debating over degrees of importance. Infantile arguments like "My Dad is better than your Dad" would surface. And the real issues would get buried under a war over poster space and room bookings as each attempts to shove the other into oblivion.

And is it not perhaps a form of tokenism to assign seven days of 365 as those on which to consider the issue? What is the implicit, if unintended, message? Is misogyny given tacit approval for the rest of the year? Increasing understanding and awareness requires a continuous effort. No one's conscience is well served by, in effect, reducing important concerns to largely self-laudatory information blitzkriegs.

Apparently we will soon experience International End Racism Day. Repeat the phrase to yourself and the absurdity of the concept is immediately apparent. One of the most disturbing problems of our society is, in this instance, trivialized beyond belief. We must understand that, although we live in an age of microwave, deeply ingrained prejudices are not effectively altered by such cavalier treatments.

I'll support International Muppet Week, or Edible Underwear Day but let's keep what really matters a year-round affair.

Manager of Operations

Women's Week: How Glendon felt

by Heather Scoffield

Saturday March 3 was the day Toronto celebrated International Women's Day with a downtown demonstration of more than 1,000 feminists. They gathered for speeches in the University of Toronto's Convocation Hall and then marched to the Pro-Life centre where demonstrators threw coat hangers onto a coffin, symbolising the pro-choice stand. A huge book fair followed the demonstration.

The International Women's Day March is an annual event for many Toronto feminists.

Glendon students made up a large proportion of this year's demonstrators.

Some of their thoughts:

Diana Panagiotopoulos

I arrived at the rally ready to listen, chant and read and I did all these things. I also learned a lot for men and women, not only in Canada, but throughout the world. It was a beautiful and moving experience! Best of all, it is making me become more aware and a greater contributor as well!

Esther Ehrensaft

Pride, unity and warmth.

Heather Scoffield

Le sentiment d'être une femme parmi un collectif actif de féministes en est un de grande inspiration. La manifestation de la journée internationale des femmes était une journée de revitalisation et d'encouragement pour la poursuite de la lutte de l'égalité. Parfois, c'est difficile pendant la reste de l'année de se souvenir qu'il y a des gens qui se sentent comme nous. Etre dans une salle avec des milliers des féministes me rappelle que l'égalité est réalisable pour les femmes, les pauvres, les amérindiens, et tous les opprimés de notre société. L'esprit présent dans cette salle est nécessaire à maintenir pendant toute l'année pour faire évoluer le collectif.

Stacey Holland

Saturday was AMAZING! As I was sitting at the rally, I had shivers running up and down my spine! It was great to know there were so many people (especially this year) who believed in the same thing. People who didn't even know one another were laughing and talking amongst themselves. This feeling pervaded the entire march and we were all warmed by it as we made our way through the streets.

After all the years I have been exposed to feminism and women's issues in general, this year's march finally made me feel as if I was part of something! "Women united, will never be divided"!

Robin Wark

Truly Inspirational. Rarely have I felt so in tune with such a dynamic group of people. Rarely do I sit in a crowded room with so many people with whom I share the same social concerns and fears. Rarely do I participate in a parade with over a thousand positive and inspirational people - it was really a tremendous and indescribable sight. Rarely do I feel so good about the positive gains women have made in the past and the progressive movement which brings about more hope.

Too bad we are still fighting for the right to feel so fabulous every day of the year.

A not-so-close friend of mine asked me: "If today is International Women's Day, then when is International Men's Day?..."

Keary Scanlon

As the rally in Convocation Hall was breaking up, a woman turned to me in the aisle as my friends and I were leaving. She smiled and told me that she hoped I hadn't been offended by all the "bad things" that were being said about men that day: "Things just have to swing the other way for a while, you know?"

I just smiled back and said not to worry; I really didn't take it personally. Now, days later, in trying to figure out what I actually meant by that, all I can do is refer you to my favorite line from 'A Dry White Season': "None of us are free until we're all free". Maybe next year.

GET YER YA-YA'S OUT!

To all the campus critics of Pro Tem's stodgy, plodding conformist style:

Here's your chance to strike a blow against journalistic Babbity and Philistinism at Glendon!

On April 2 1990 Pro Tem will be publishing its Annual Spoof Issue and we need all your humour, your satire, your paens to the virtues of essays handed in on time, the glories of Vitamin C, etc.

All articles are welcome, provided they are submitted by 12:00 noon, Friday March 30 1990, to Room 117 Glendon Hall.

Now is your last chance to come out of your journalistic closet!

Comments on the Pub Asbestos Scare

by Millicent Parker-Greenstone

"I like asbestos the best when it's steamed lightly with a raspberry sauce so the tips aren't too soft, only firm. I was disappointed to find there was no raspberry sauce to put on the asbestos, and it was kind of harsh." - A psychedelic Shriner.

"To me, the Pub Asbestos Scare was very reassuring. Why? Well, as we all know, asbestos produces diarrhea and I've often been bombarded with an outflux of verbal diarrhea in the pub. The pub asbestos scare has not made me nonplussed by the situation I've encountered daily, as I know it is manufactured by the forces of industry, rather than by the pettiness of personality." - a postmodern clown.

"I concur with this statement with a sense of relief, as I have experienced a symbolic clearance - or catharsis, if you will - of my vocabularic bowels. As we all know, a cleared bowel is a happy vowel." - Daphne.

"I feel this is indicative of a burgeoning enviroconscience (you don't mind if I make up words, do you?), to which the microcosm of the Glendon Community is demonstrating a gradual (yet definite) affinity. 'Cause marketing,' inasmuch as it informs and motivates collective consciousness, does not alleviate the abhorrent tide of blithe acceptance perpetuated within the constructs of post-modern post-industrial latter-day civilization which ascribes the phenomena of enviro-disaster to a blameless economic infrastructure. We should feel guilty.

Albeit many people purport non-participation in the money economy, nevertheless we cannot absolve ourselves, since anyone living, breathing, and - in this case - imbibing distilled beverages becomes implicated and hence shares the responsibility. Thank you." - Merriam Webster.

As you can perceive from the candid remarks I have gleaned from the above pub-frequenters, there is a varied response to the much-publicized asbestos scare at the pub. One can only accept that our lives have been deeply affected by this near-emergency situation and we can be proud of the fact that Hagersville has nothing on us.

New sports shop at Proctor Field

by Lori Harris

Proctor Field House administration has announced plans to open a sports shop May 1, to be located in the old fitness room, adjacent to the weight room.

The store will feature a good selection of clothing, equipment and accessories geared towards students and Glendon community athletes. Top names such as Brooks and Slazenger will be available in items such as squash, tennis and badminton racquets, aerobic wear, shoes, shorts, sweats, swimsuits, goggles, balls and other Glendon paraphernalia. Equipment rentals will also be available.

Paul Comper, Proctor's director of athletics, said the relocation and expansion of the old pro shop, formerly located in the squash club, is not intended to compete with Glendon's bookstore.

"It will just expand the service that was previously available to those who used Proctor." Comper said.

The store will be approximately 10X22 feet in size and will be run by students. It will cost little to set up, as the space already exists. It will feature reasonable prices, hopefully with frequent buyer programs, and discounts for students. The profits are expected to offset declining bar sales and will be plowed back into the improvement of Glendon's sports facilities.

Week. Further, as difficult as it may be for you to appreciate, there are some people in this world who do have the "courage of their convictions" and we are not afraid to stand and be counted. I hope you will restore this right to me by at least printing this letter to the editor.

Yours truly

Satisfaites

To the Editor:

Les "Femmes d'action de Glendon" sont grandement satisfaites de la tourneure positive qu'a pris la semaine internationale de la Femme à Glendon. Le travail ardu qu'on y a mis a bien été récompensé par la participation des étudiants, des étudiantes et du personnel de Glendon.

Since there were so many people who helped with International Women's Week, individual thanks would fill up the whole page. Therefore, we would like to thank all those who supported us and participated with us to make this event a great success.

Soyez fier de porter votre macaron "Eve" car l'évolution de la femme ne s'est pas arrêtée le 8 mars.

Merci
Karine Morin

Thanks

To the Editor:

Pro Tem would like to thank Kim Mistysyn for her help in producing last week's issue. Unfortunately her name was not included in the list of last week's production staff.

Votez: Craig Williams pour le poste de directeur de Radio Glendon' for a sound and organized future.

DEE—JAYZ OF THE WEEK

"People of superior refinement and of active disposition identify happiness with honour..."-Aristotle of CKRG. People of superior refinement should go enjoy some Connors in the Café Tuesday afternoon to hear Craig Pady, John Rosemitch and Adrian Callender on CKRG. Craig grooves jazz and reggae from 1:30 to 4:00 (Billie, Miles and Ziggy). John cranks out blues-rock tunes between 4 and 5:30 (March 21 and 22, Grateful Dead, Copps Coliseum. Adrian mixes jazz and reggae sounds with alternative pop from 5:30 to 7:00 (Maynard Ferguson to Style Cormail). CKRG: instant happiness and sporadic honour.

When it comes to hiring the Deaf, seeing is believing.
